

SEARCH HISTORY

You can see a history of your past searches, and even “search through your search” and annotate the searches, and then search through those annotations.

To access your search history, just click on the “clock” icon [1] at the top of the corpus. You will see information about each search [2], such as the corpus, search string, search type, and when the search was done. You can also limit the history just to a particular corpus [3], and you can delete a search [4] from your history. Click ‘Re-do” [5] to re-do the search. And you can search through your past searches [7] – even going back months or years.

You can also share a link to the search [6]. You can paste this web address (URL) into a web page, an email, the footnotes of an academic paper, or anywhere else. When someone else clicks on this link, they will see exactly what you saw when you did the search. In this way, your results and data can be reproducible for others.
